This procedure, unusual in other than a murder trial, but adopted in the rials of the four police inspectors as well as that of Lieut, Becker, was ordered by the presiding Judge, James T. Malone. He told the jurors in the Porter case that the interests of the seblic required that they be protected and that their comfort and convenience would be looked out for.

Meanwhile in Albany Gov. broadened the powers of William Rand and Nathan A. Smyth, who as Deputy Attorneys-General are counselling the Extraordinary Grand Jury. When the Attorney-General's office superseded that of the District Attorney in this jury's investigation it was authorized only to inquire into the conduct of three nembers of Judge Swann's staff.
